Post-Secondary Research Project

When choosing a post-secondary school, you must thoroughly research each school and carefully consider your options. There are many factors involved in choosing a post-secondary school. When doing research, it can be very helpful to create a table showing information about each school you are considering. This will help you compare schools at a glance. You can then make an informed decision about which post-secondary school is right for you. The table can take various forms, but it should include all of the information that is important to you when making your decision. Research the schools you are interested in attending, and create a table to display the information.

Consider including the following categories:

- Name of School
- Courses of Study
- Admissions Requirements
- Financial Aid Available
- Support Services
- Tuition Fees
- Housing
- Distance From Home
- Public Transportation Options
